For example, if the deposit was $350,000 for a single room with a single ensuite, and the MPIR was 8.51%, the sum to find the daily payment would be: $350000 \times 0.0851 / 365 = \80.60 Daily Accommodation Payment

If the resident and their family would like to pay part of the deposit and make up the difference with a periodic payment, then the sum to find the daily payment would be found by taking the unpaid deposit amount, multiplying that by the MPIR and dividing it by 365.

For example, if the deposit paid was $175,000 and the MPIR was 8.51%, the sum to find the daily accommodation payment would be:
 $175000 \times 0.0851 / 365 = \40.80 Daily Accommodation Payment.
